

THE LINCOLN LOG
ON THIS DAY,

SEPTEMBER 13, 1862

In the morning, President Lincoln suffers an injury while commuting from the Soldier's Home to the White House. A newspaper reports, "His steed, a spirited and powerful beast, ran off with him, and came very near throwing him in the race, in which Mr. Lincoln lost his hat, but succeeded in checking the animal's career at the cost of a sprained wrist in so doing."

CO-SPONSORED BY THE ILLINOIS PRESS ASSOCIATION
AND THIS NEWSPAPER